Suggested development brief

- Use: general boxing training. Agree bag-work and sparring suitability with the buyer and coach; a photograph alone cannot establish suitability.
- Weight: discuss 10, 12, 14 or 16 oz by model. A 14 or 16 oz starting option may suit adult training, but selection depends on body size, purpose and gym rules.
- Shell: compare leather with suitable synthetic leather or microfiber. Approve a swatch and finished sample rather than choosing by appearance alone.
- Build: agree layered padding, attached-thumb geometry, palm ventilation, lining, grip feel and a supportive closure.
- Decision: approve fit, measured weight and construction before approving a production run.

Specify the material. Approve the feel.

Material choices are development options, not a claim that every pictured reference uses the same construction.

01 / Gloves

- Shell options: genuine leather, suitable PU or microfiber; confirm grade, thickness, finish and colour.
- Padding: select foam layers, density and feel for the intended use. Latex may be discussed as an optional layer; request latex-free construction if required.
- Lining: approve fabric, hand feel and moisture behaviour. Any neoprene or open-cell proposal needs a physical sample review.
- Closures: hook-and-loop, laces or a model-specific system. Agree strap width and wrap length.

02 / Wraps & inner gloves

- Roll wraps: cotton-based semi-elastic weave options; approve the actual fibre composition and stretch.
- Dimensions: a 4.5 m × 5 cm build can be discussed, with thumb loop and end closure. Confirm the exact length: 180 inches is 4.572 m, rather than exactly 4.5 m.
- Fast wraps: mesh, neoprene and padding options vary by model. Check thickness, seams and fit inside the boxing glove.
- Labelling: agree woven or printed labels and care instructions on the sample.

03 / Pads & protection

- Mitts and pads: agree outer shell, padding stack, backing, grip and straps; avoid a single specification for all shapes.
- Headguards: coverage, liner, foam layout, ear details and adjustment are model-specific.
- Groin protectors: define cup/core, padding, fabric or shell, size and fastening.
- Trunks and balls: approve fabric/waistband for trunks; shell, bladder, size and mounting for speed or double-end balls.

Design references. Final specifications and commercial terms are agreed in writing.

Your colours. Your identity.

Approve artwork at actual production size before sampling and bulk manufacture.

Product branding

- Colour: send colour references or swatches. Base material, surface finish and print method affect the match.
- Glove artwork: agree knuckle, wrist, thumb and palm positions. Printing, embroidery, woven patches or debossing are assessed against the selected shell.
- Wrap artwork: agree label size, placement, closure patch and repeat pattern. Keep the usable wrapping surface and closure functional.
- Development details: confirm logo clear space, seam positions, thumb shape and cuff length. A 4-inch strap or extended wrap closure is a project target to assess on a sample.

Labels & packaging

- Labels: woven or printed brand labels, sizing, material and care information to the approved brief.
- Packaging: discuss individual bags, inserts, boxes, barcode labels and outer-carton marking. Confirm each included item in the quote.
- Files: supply vector artwork where possible, plus colour codes, product reference and a placement sketch.
- Approval: review logo reproduction, rub resistance and finish on a sample before signing off the production artwork.

Design references. Final specifications and commercial terms are agreed in writing.

Sample first. Produce to the approval.

An agreed sample and specification provide the reference for your production order.

01

Define

Choose reference, intended use, weights or sizes, material options, artwork and quantity.

02

Develop

Review the sample brief, costs and target timing. Material availability and revisions affect the schedule.

03

Approve

Review fit, construction, measured weight/dimensions, finish, logo placement and packaging.

04

Produce

Agree order terms, production slot and checks. Request batch and packing evidence before dispatch.

First-time prototype offer
One free prototype sample for a first-time customer, after the product and sample brief are agreed. Delivery, taxes and duties are excluded. Additional samples and revisions are quoted separately. No expiry date is stated for this benefit.

Agree a check plan
For gloves: weight, fit, thumb and cuff, seams, closure and finish. For wraps: length, width, stretch, closure and washing behaviour. Request any specialist laboratory or compliance testing separately; certification is not implied by a catalogue image.

Design references. Final specifications and commercial terms are agreed in writing.

Plan the range. Then price the specification.

Public website budget ranges at a planning quantity of 50 units. These are estimates, not selling prices or a formal offer.

*Per unit at a planning quantity of 50. A guide at 50 does not establish the order minimum. Materials, construction, size split, branding and packaging affect the final price. Freight, taxes, duties and sample/revision charges are excluded. Confirm currency, quote validity and payment terms in writing. No automatic price reduction at 100 or 300 units is assumed.

Budget source: FBG website estimate profiles reviewed 6 November 2026. Not a firm price for any pictured item.

Agree quantities and dates before ordering.

A design reference is the starting point for a production discussion, not a stock or delivery promise.

Minimum order quantities

- Boxing gloves: the source range lists a planning guide of 50 pairs per design. Confirm the chosen model, colours and weight split in the quotation.
- Hand wraps: request the actual MOQ for the chosen weave, length, colour and label. Confirm whether quantities mean individual wraps or pairs.
- Other equipment: minima vary by product and branding method. A budget example at 50 units does not guarantee that a 50-unit run can be accepted.
- New-brand enquiry: ask for separate quotations at 50, 100 and 300+ pairs, with colour and size/weight splits clearly listed.

Lead times and order terms

- Sampling: confirm the start date after the brief, artwork and materials are agreed. Include time for any revision and sample freight.
- Bulk production: obtain a written completion window after sample approval and order confirmation; do not rely on a generic lead time.
- Shipping: transit time is separate from factory production time. Allow for customs clearance and destination delivery.
- Footwear development: boxing-shoe projects can be reviewed on request. Define the last, size run, upper, sole and fit brief; a verified product sample is required.

Design references. Final specifications and commercial terms are agreed in writing.

From our production plan to your destination.

For Spain enquiries, the delivery city and postcode in Madrid are needed before freight can be priced.

Compare delivery routes

- Express courier: ask for a sample or small-order quote with parcel dimensions and chargeable weight.
- Air freight: compare for time-sensitive bulk orders once cartons, weights and destination handling are known.
- Sea freight: review for larger shipments where the order volume and delivery schedule make it appropriate.
- Delivered terms: request an Incoterm and named place. DDP should only be treated as offered when the written quote explicitly confirms its scope and availability.

Inputs needed for Madrid pricing

- Full delivery address, postal code and whether the receiver is a business or individual.
- Product references, quantity, sizes/weights, packaging and resulting carton count.
- Gross weight and external carton measurements; the carrier may charge by volumetric weight.
- Required delivery date, importer details and any applicable tax/customs requirements.

Freight is not included in the unit-budget guide or the free prototype benefit. Confirm shipping, handling, duties, taxes and insurance explicitly. No fixed Madrid freight price or transit time is stated until the route, order and quote are confirmed.

Questions buyers ask before a first run.

Answers for brands, clubs and gyms building their first or next boxing collection.

Which training glove should a new brand start with?

Begin with one reference, one clearly defined training use and a manageable colour/weight range. Compare the sample for fit, padding, closure and finish before expanding the line.

Can colours, logos, labels and packaging be customised?

Yes, these can be discussed for a private-label brief. Confirm feasibility, artwork, methods, minima and included packaging for the selected product.

What are the glove and hand-wrap minimums?

Gloves have a source planning guide from 50 pairs per design. Hand-wrap and other minima depend on the selected build and branding; obtain written confirmation.

Is a first-time prototype free?

One prototype may be requested under the first-time customer offer after the sample brief is agreed. Delivery, taxes and duties are excluded; additional samples/revisions are quoted separately.

What are the prices at 50, 100 and 300 pairs?

Use the 50-unit budget guide for early planning only. Actual prices at every order quantity are provided in a written quotation for the agreed specification.

How long do samples and bulk production take?

Request separate sample, revision, bulk-production and transit windows. Dates are confirmed for the project rather than guaranteed from a catalogue.

Can you quote delivery to Madrid?

Yes, request a route and freight quote using the Madrid delivery address, quantities, packaging, carton measurements and weights. Confirm what taxes and duties are included.

Can the product specifications develop over time?

Use an approved sample, versioned specification and change record. Review new materials, construction or artwork on a new sample before changing the bulk order.
